Microsoft Office 365 is the most popular and widely-used cloud-based productivity suite on the planet. Office 365 is the modern evolution of the Office suite of applications that was first introduced in the 1990s. Office 365 offers an array of business-grade features and tools that are available to your organization on any device (On-Premises, SaaS, On-Demand, Device, or Hybrid) at any time, from any location and any device. Like most Office 365 customers, I am excited about what Office 365 will offer the next generation of business and IT users. I also know that there are a lot of existing Office 365 customers out there who are not quite ready to adopt the new Office 365 features. They are still using legacy Office versions and they are considering or even considering switching to other cloud-based productivity suites or platforms. In this report, we'll explore the top 5 reasons why Microsoft Office 365 is not ready for your business yet. After reading this report, you should understand the benefits of moving your organization to Office 365 today and in the future. Ready For Office 365? Microsoft 365 for Business is the combination of the Microsoft Office desktop versions (Word, Excel, PowerPoint, OneNote, Outlook, Publisher, Access, and Skype for Business) and the Skype for Business version. If you have business plans in place that are no longer limited by your organization's on-premises licenses, then you should read this report to get a better understanding of what Office 365 offers for your organization. How to Switch to Office 365 and Microsoft 365. Click the link above to get more details about migrating your organization to Office 365. 1. Microsoft Office 365 is a new version of Office. Microsoft launched Office 365 with a new interface, versioning, and touch-based tablet and mobile applications. Because of this, it will take a little time for business users to get used to the new interface and the new features. Also, the Office 365 customers are facing a problem with Microsoft's automatic update mechanism. One-time Office 365 users have to manually install the Office 365 updates, even if they are not necessary. 2. It might require a long time to upgrade to Office 365. The company has stated that it takes 24 months from the time an organization acquires Office 365 to the time that users of legacy versions of Office can
